Mr. Pinney was born in London, England, July 10, 1843, and came to this oquatry in 1863. Eventually Mr. Pinney became super-intendent of public school construction and in that capacity he erected most of the public schools in the city, his most notable effort in this line being the Lafayette school, where there is now in practical use a smoke consumer of his invention. He was married to Miss Jamima Ward in 1864, and was the father of five sons and four daughters, all of whom are now living. He was also the grandfather of nineteen children.
